THE ADVENTURES OF MR. PETER RUFF

By E. Phillips Oppenheim—The Perfidy of Miss Brown.

Copyright, 1909, By the Pearson Publishing Co.

"I do," Peter Ruff answered. "Please do not think that I mean to make any reflection upon your skill. It is just a chance that I was able to see what you were not able to see. In an hour's time, you shall restore the Clenarvon diamonds to Lord Clenarvon. You shall take the reward which he has just offered, of a thousand pounds. And I promise you that the manner in which you shall recover the jewels shall be such that you will be famous for a long time to come."

"You are a wonderful man!" John Dory said, hoarsely. "Do you mean, then, that the jewels were not with those men in the motor-car?"

"Of course not!" Peter Ruff answered. "But come along. The story will develop."

At half-past ten that morning, a motor-car turned out from the garage at Clenarvon Court, and made its way down the avenue. In it was a single passenger—the dark-faced Parisian valet of the Marquis de Sogrange. As the car left the avenue and struck into the main road, it was hailed by Peter Ruff and John Dory, who were walking together along the lane.

"Say, my man," Peter Ruff said, addressing the chauffeur, "are you going to the station?"

"Yes, sir!" the man answered. "I am taking down the Marquis Sogrange's servant to catch the eleven o'clock train to town."

"You don't mind giving us a lift?" Peter Ruff asked, already opening the door.

"Certainly not, sir," the man answered, touching his hat.

Peter Ruff and John Dory stepped into the tonneau of the car. The man civilly lifted the hatbox from the seat, and made room for his enforced companions. Nevertheless, it was easy to see that he was not pleased.

"There's plenty of room here for three," Peter Ruff said, cheerfully, as they sat on either side of him. "Drive slowly, please, chauffeur. Now, Mr. Lemprise," Peter Ruff added, "we will trouble you to change places."

"What do you mean?" the man called out, suddenly pale as death.

He was held as though in a vice. John Dory's arm was through his on one side, and Peter Ruff's on the other. Apart from that, the muzzle of a revolver was pressed to his forehead.

"On second thoughts," Peter Ruff said, "I think we will keep you like this. Driver," he called out, "please return to the Court at once."

The man hesitated. "You recognize the gentleman who is with me?" Peter Ruff said. "He is the detective from Scotland Yard. I have full authority from Lord Clenarvon over all his servants. Please do as I say."

The man hesitated no more. The car was backed and turned, the Frenchman struggling all the way like a wildcat. Once he tried to kick the hatbox into the road, but John Dory was too quick for him. So they drove up to the front door of the Court, to be welcomed with cries of astonishment from the whole of the shooting party, who were just starting. Foremost amongst them was Sogrange. They crowded around the car. Peter Ruff touched the hatbox with his foot.

"If we could trouble your Lordship," he said, "to open that hatbox, you will find something that will interest you. Mr. Dory has planned a little surprise for you, in which I have been permitted to help."

The women, who gathered that something was happening, came hastening out from the hall. They all crowded round Lord Clenarvon, who was cutting through the leather strap of the hatbox. Inside the silk hat which reposed there, were the Clenarvon diamonds. Monsieur le Marquis de Sogrange was one of the foremost to give vent to an exclamation of delight.

"Monsieur le Marquis," Peter Ruff said, "this should be a lesson to you, I hope, to have the characters of your servants more rigidly verified. Mr. Dory tells me that this man came into your employ at the last moment with a forged recommendation. He is, in effect, a dangerous thief."

"You amaze me!" Sogrange exclaimed.

"We are all interested in this affair," Peter Ruff said, "and my friend John Dory here is, perhaps, too modest to properly explain the matter. If you care to come with me, we can reconstruct, in a minute, the theft."

John Dory and Peter Ruff first of all handed over their captive, who was now calm and apparently resigned, to the two policemen who were still on duty in the Court. Afterwards, Peter Ruff led the way up one flight of stairs, and turned the handle of the door of an apartment exactly over the morning-room. It was the bedroom of the Marquis de Sogrange.

THOUGHT HE SHOULD GO MAD WITH ECZEMA

On Face and Scalp. Dry, Scaly, Itching and Burning. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and After a Few Days, Eczema Was Cured.

"I suffered from the early part of December until nearly the beginning of March with severe skin eruptions on my face and scalp. At first I treated it as a trivial matter. But after having used castile soap, medicated wash, cold cream, vanishing cream, etc., I found no relief whatever. After that, I diagnosed my case as eczema, because of its dry, scaly appearance. The itching and burning of my scalp became very annoying. I had read different testimonials of cures by the Cuticura Remedies, and I decided to purchase a box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Cuticura Soap. After using them for a few days I recognized a marked change in my condition. Hereafter I will never be without a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and five cakes of Cuticura Soap in all, and after a few days I was cured. My eczema was entirely cured, all due to using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I hereby certify that I have been cured of my skin troubles. (Signed) David M. Shaw, c/o Paymaster, Pier 55, N. R., New York City, June 2, 1910. Cuticura Remedies sold everywhere. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., Boston, for free book on skin and scalp troubles."

SLEEVE HINTS

The new waists are made on rather severe lines and are trimmed simply. The demand is for richness of trimming rather than for quantity. The kimono sleeve waist is far more satisfactory than the waist with a seam on the shoulder, unless the latter is very carefully made. One of the serious objections to many shirt-waists has been that the shoulder seam has not been far enough back on the shoulder. This was not only the case with many of the home-made waists, but was true even of some of those which came from the hands of first-class dress-makers. The shoulder seam which was placed too far over the front gave an ugly set to the shoulder and made the wearer seem to be half-deformed when viewed from the back. All this is done away with in the kimono sleeve.

THE MANY USES OF THE ZERAPE

There is nothing else woven that can be applied to so many uses as the Mexican zerape. Though made for a shawl in Mexico it is used extensively elsewhere for couch covers, portiers, table covers, etc. Made of wool, by the Mexican Indians, the texture is fine, the colors fast and the designs beautiful.

Bullock's Big Curio store has just received a large shipment of these beautiful zerapes, one from Aguas Calientes and the other from Zacatecas, where the finest are made. For generations the Indians of Zacatecas, the New Jerusalem of the western continent, so called from the topography of the country, had been engaged in the manufacture of zerapes. Zacatecas became famous for its silver mining, but that came to an end and now there is scattered about the abandoned mines old machinery valued at millions of dollars. With the lapse of this industry the Indians have returned to the adjacent village of Guadalupe, and the place has become famous again for its zerapes.

Now the most interesting part of this matter is this: these zerapes, ordered nearly a year ago, are going for cost. They have to be sold along with everything else in the Big Curio store in this closing out sale, which cannot last much longer as Mr. Bullock will shortly leave for Europe.

MOCK TURTLE SOUP

One calf's liver and heart, add one knuckle of veal, cover with water and allow to come to a boil; skim, boil fifteen minutes and then place in fireless stove for five hours. Strain off, chop meat fine, add one chopped onion, salt, pepper and ground cloves to taste, thickening it if necessary with a little browned flour. Cook a few minutes in liquor. Have yolks of four hard-boiled eggs cut up for tureen; also slices of lemon.
